Pekah was killed in (not his 20th but) his 30th (calendrical) year (see note at Jan. 744 B.C., col.S) by Hoshea, who "reigned in his stead" (2 Kings 15:30), in the 12th (anniversary) year of Ahaz of Judah 9 years (ch. 17:1), there being no interregnum as many scholars propose because no Biblical ground exists to allow the common phrase "in his stead" to contain any appreciable gap in time.

Omissions in PTOLEMY'S Canon are the short-term rulers
1) NABU-SHUMA-UKIN and
2) NABU-MUKIN-ZERI.
Only a personage UKIN-ZIR, thought to be PULU, is mentioned for this regnal period of 5 years.
However according to a recent translation of the Babylonian Tablet evidence, UKIN-ZIR is separately identified as the longer reigning NABU-MUKIN-ZERI, while PULU after him, is identified as TIGLATH-PILESER III (A.B.C. p.72-3).
